Denali Dome Home Bed and Breakfast

27th year in 2016

This is not a yurt but a huge, intriguing geodesic house on a 5-acre lot, offering one of the best B&B experiences in Alaska. There are seven modern rooms (with partial antique furnishings), an open common area with fireplace, and a small business area.

The owners are absolute oracles of wisdom when it comes to Denali, and do a bang-up job with breakfast. They also offer car rental. Our independent authors have visited Denali Dome Home B&B and selected this as one of our recommended accommodations in North America. Lonely Planet, Alaska, 2015

More Advantages with Denali Dome Home

Denali Dome Home Bed and Breakfast is open year-round and is only two turns and 12 miles from the Denali National Park.

Hosts give important information to save time and money for their guests.

The Millers are delighted to make dinner reservations, to order Alaskan Railroad tickets for a savings, to arrange tours and activities and to schedule events for special, personalize vacation.

Terry is a retired government worker. He is a skilled tradesman who likes to hunt and fish. Ask him about his unique ulus that he makes and has for sale. Ulus are traditional Alaskan knives. Ann is a retired teacher who enjoys computers, art, photography, reading, and gardening. They have three children and five grandchildren.

Directions:

Denali Dome Home is an Alaskan family-run, bed and breakfast in Healy, Alaska, 12 miles north of Denali National Park. Look for tourists' directional signs and turn east into Healy at Mile 248.8 of the George Parks Highway (Hwy#3). The Millers share their home in the true tradition of a bed and breakfast. They have entertained guests from all over the world.

Denali Dome Home Bed and Breakfast is smoke free. Bring slippers or the Millers can provide them for use inside the home. It is an Alaskan custom to not wear street shoes in the house. Kitchen use is restricted to employees only, but the Millers provide another sink and microwave for guests' use. Refrigerators are in all rooms.
